Read the passage and answer questions 21 – 25

Your senses are very important to you. You depend on them every day. They tell you where you are and what is going on around you. Your senses are: sight, hearing, touch, smell, and taste. Your senses help to keep you from harm. They warn you if you touch something that will burn you. They keep you from looking at a light that is too bright, and they tell you if a car is coming up behind you. Each of your senses collects information and sends it as a message to your brain which sorts out the messages and acts on them.

Read the passage and answer questions 21 -25

Your nose is your sense organ for smelling. Smells are mixed into the air around you. They enter your nose when you breathe. The smells are picked up in the upper part of your nose and messages are sent to your brain from here.

Smelling can be a pleasant sense. Sometimes smells can remind you of a person or a place. Smelling also can be quite unpleasant. But this is important, too. By smelling food you can tell if it is spoilt and not fit to eat. Your sense of smell also can sometimes warn you of danger, such as a fire.

21. Which word from the passage means "to take air into your lungs and send it out again through your nose or mouth"?

A) to breathe
B) to spoil
C) to mix
D) to send

Read the passage and answer questions 21-25

Before the 20th century, most hotels in American cities were either very expensive and elegant or cheap but very uncomfortable. Ellsworth Statler was the first person to build middle priced hotels. In 1907, his Buffalo Statler Hotel offered a room and a bath for one-and-a-half dollar. Later Statler opened such hotels in many large cities of the USA. He was the first person who put telephones and radios in every guest-room. Today there are a great number of hotels in the USA. The largest hotel chain, or group of hotels, is Holiday Inns. The word "inn" sounds friendly because it makes you think of a smaller, more personal hotel.

Noticing signals that people send out with their face and body movements is very important. Some people can naturally do it and it's very helpful. Some experiments have shown that women are usually better than men at recognizing fear and anger in people's faces. Disgust, disrespect and suffering seem to be the most difficult emotions for people everywhere either to recognize or to express. Some people give completely the wrong expression of how they feel. For example, they try to show love but in fact communicate dislike. Or when they want to show interest, they give the impression that they don't care. This can happen even among close friends and members of the same family. In other words, what we think we are communicating through language, voice, face and body movements may be exact opposite of what other people understand.

21. The underlined pronoun they refers to ...
A) disgust, disrespect and suffering
B) people's faces
C) some experiments
D) difficult emotions
E) some people
22. Choose the wrong statements according to the passage.

Read the passage and answer questions 21 – 25

There is one type of person who tries to do very little and get as much as possible. His opposite does more than necessary and accepts only what is offered. The man who avoids efforts thinks that society must give him a pleasant life. His opposite feels that he is in debt to society. The first type doesn't want to do anything, that's why he is always full of excuses. At first people accept them, but soon they realize what kind of person he is. He thinks he is unjustly treated and blames everyone except himself. So if you need help, don't go to the first type, go to the busiest man you know. If what you want is really important, he will make time for it.

Both these types are unconscious of their character, but if you can distinguish one from the other, it will help you in business and life in general.

21. Choose the correct statement or statements according to the passage.

1. The man who avoids his duties blames himself when something goes wrong.
 2. The busiest man you know will make time to help you.
 3. The man who does more than necessary thinks that he is not obliged to society.

A) 2,3 B) 2 C) 1,2 D) 1,2,3 E) 1

22. Which is the main idea of the passage?

- A) There are two character types the knowledge of which can help you in business and real life situations.
 B) If people are unjustly treated, they should blame everyone except themselves.
 C) The two types are unconscious of their character and it is not important to differ one from the other.
 D) The man who is full of excuses never blames anyone.

E) If you need help in business, go to the one who tries to avoid his duties.

23. Which verb from the passage means “to recognize the difference between two people or things”?

- A) to treat B) to avoid C) to blame
D) to accept E) to distinguish

24. The underlined pronoun them refers to

- A) efforts B) both types
C) people D) the first type and his opposite
E) excuses

25. Which questions have no answer in the passage?

1. Which type of person is common in every society?

Read the passage and answer questions 21 – 25

Pizza has a long history. The ancient Greeks first had the idea of putting vegetables on large flat pieces of bread, and "pizza ovens" were found in the ruins of Roman cities. But for centuries one vital ingredient was missing – the first tomatoes were not brought to Europe until the sixteenth century. In the nineteenth century Rafaele Esposito, a baker from Naples, began to sell the special pizza for a visit by the Italian King and Queen in 1889, and so the first pizza Margarita was created, named after the Queen.

Pizza became a favourite dish in Italy. But only after the Second World War, when thousands of American soldiers went home from Europe, pizza really became an international dish. Soon it began to be sold all over the USA.

Read the passage and answer questions 21 – 25

Water makes up about 75% of the adult human body and around 85% of our brain. It is vital for almost everybody. We lose water all the time, through our skin especially when it is hot or with exercising and even through breathing. Very few of us replace the amount of water that we lose. We should drink at least 8-10 glasses of water each day. Not drinking enough water can cause headaches, dry skin, and other illnesses. So instead of rushing to the doctor, we must increase the amount of water we drink. Water is possibly the simplest, most natural medicine in the world. Drink some water when you wake up and before going to bed.

Read the passage and answer questions 21 – 25

Energy is very important in modern life. We use energy to transport people and products from place to place, heat and cool our homes, cook, give light and so on. Most energy nowadays comes from petroleum, coal and natural gas. However, these kinds of energy cause pollution, and also if we don't find new sources of energy, we'll use them up in the twenty-first century. Scientists are working to find other kinds of energy for the future. What might new sources of energy be? They might be energy from wind, water, the earth, and the sun. And these kinds of energy won't cause pollution of the environment.

Read the passage and answer questions 21 – 25

Cotton has been grown for over five thousand years in places as China, Egypt and India. It was first planted in America in 1607. Before 1800 cotton was more expensive than silk, because many workers were needed to pick it. However, a huge increase in the number of slaves resulted in much greater cotton production and a fall in the price. This and the new technology of the industrial revolution made cotton the cheapest product in history. In the nineteenth century cotton was making more money for the USA than tobacco or sugar.

21. Choose the wrong statements.

Read the passage and answer questions 21 – 25

If you walk or drive on a crowded road of a big industrious city, you will feel that the air you are breathing smells awful. The reason is that the air in such areas is highly polluted. Pollution means the presence of harmful matter in the environmental air, water and land. It disturbs the balance of gases present in the atmosphere. Industries and the way of life in big cities are the main sources of pollution. Factories and other industries produce continuous smoke. It spreads and stays in the atmosphere. Pollution damages not only the land and water but also the atmospheric layers. To save the life of all living beings on the Earth, it is important to reduce pollution and all the people must participate in it.

Read the passage and answer questions 21 -25

Advertising has become a very specialized activity in modern times. In the business world of today a suggestion is usually greater than demand. That is why there is a great competition between different manufacturers to convince customers to buy their products. They always have to remind the consumers of the name and the qualities of the product. They do this by advertising. The manufacturers advertise their product through the newspapers, posters or commercial radio and television. They often spend large sum of money on advertisements. We buy a particular product because we think that it is the best. We think so because of the advertisements that say so. Some people never stop asking themselves if the advertisements are telling the truth.

Read the passage and answer questions 21 – 25

The Japanese have suffered from a great number of earthquakes. This encouraged them to create a new technology in building modern houses. It is the system used for the construction of ancient wooden houses, "pagodas". The Japanese have been building such houses for centuries. Some of them were burnt in fire, but none of them was damaged during earthquakes. The secret of their strength lies in their unique structure. When an earthquake occurs, each floor of a house shakes separately, reducing its effect. This ancient system was combined with modern technology in the structure of buildings.

Looking at modern buildings people feel respect and admiration for the wisdom of classical Japanese architecture.

21. Which statements are true according to the passage?

1. The new system of building is based on classical Japanese architecture.
 2. Ancient wooden houses could resist earthquakes.
 3. Earthquakes hardly occur in Japan.

Read the passage and answer question 21 – 25

Humanity has always dreamed of magnificent buildings reaching the sky. In 1958 this dream came true when the tower Sky Tree, with its height of 333 metres, rose over Tokyo. At that time it was the world's first building which was higher than the Eiffel Tower. It could also operate as the world's tallest broadcasting tower. Today the Sky Tree is 634 metres high.

When the Great Japan Earthquake occurred in 2011, the Sky Tree got no damage because the architects used a new system of construction. This system reduced the force of the earthquake. The success of the system was in combining modern technology with secrets of ancient Japanese architecture.

Read the passage and answer questions 21 – 25

A Stradivarius violin is one of the violins built by members of the family particularly Antonio Stradivari during the 17th and 18th centuries. It cannot match the tonal quality of any other violin. Unfortunately, the secrets for making such an instrument were lost in 1737 with the death of Antonio Stradivari. Many attempts have been made to reproduce an instrument of such quality, but they all have failed. It's believed that the secret lies in the wood that was used. The price for such a rare instrument is hundreds of thousands of dollars. The fame of Stradivarius instruments is widely spread.

Great violinists and musical instrument collectors would like to own a Stradivarius violin. Even the cheapest one costs around a quarter of a million dollars.

21. The passage is mainly about ...

- A) a cheap musical instrument
- B) A. Stradivari's masterpiece
- C) the death of A. Stradivari
- D) A. Stradivari's family members

Every year about three million people visit Mount Rushmore monument, to see the faces of the four US presidents, carved on the mountain by the sculptor Gutson Borglum and his son. The creation of the monument took 14 years – from 1927 to 1941 and cost nearly a million dollars. At that time it was difficult to make money and most people were jobless. He involved unemployed workers to work. They had to use dynamite and heavy equipment to explode stones and carve on them. Borglum taught them how to do it. He was proud of the fact that no workers were killed or seriously injured while exploding and carving.

This national monument is preserved for future generations. It attracts a large number of tourists every year.

answer the questions 21-21

Money has a long history. While our society was developing, people needed more convenient types of money. The earliest forms of money included cattle, grain and salt. Later they were replaced by gold, silver and paper money. In the second half of the 20th century people realized that they didn't have to carry money to buy something. It was enough to have only a small credit card in your pocket. Today more and more people use credit cards to buy things or pay for various kinds of services. Credit cards give you the opportunity to transfer your money even without touching it.

Read the passage and answer questions 21-25

The first theatre in England was built in 1576. In those times public theatres had no roofs, so the performance depended on the weather. Flags were hoisted when a play was given. Most of the plays were performed in the afternoon. Theatre-goers sent their servants to occupy seats for them. While waiting for the play to start, the public usually amused themselves by eating apples and playing cards. Few women attended public theatres in those times. If a lady went to see a performance she wore a mask.

Read the passage and answer questions 21-25

A supermarket is a self-service store. Before such stores were introduced, people had to buy different goods at different shops. They pointed to what they wanted, and shop-assistants gathered the goods. So the shopping process was slow. The idea of self-service system came to American Clarence Saunders. In 1916 he opened the first supermarket that provided a broad choice of goods under a single roof. The customers themselves gathered their goods in a basket and paid at the cash desks. The self-service system allowed to replace a lot of shop-assistants with only a few cashiers. Now people enjoy doing shopping at the supermarkets.

Read the passage and answer questions 21 – 25

Sleepwalking is a sleep disorder that can occur in both children and adults. Sleepwalking occurs most commonly in childhood, typically between the ages 4 and 8, but can last into adulthood. Its causes are not known but they are related to tiredness, weakness, anxiety, or reaction to drugs. While someone is sleepwalking, he or she may take part in simple actions such as sitting up, getting up and walking around before returning to bed. More complex activities such as getting dressed, washing dishes, moving furniture, and even operating machines such as cars have also been noted among some sleepwalkers. Some episodes of sleepwalking are very short, lasting only seconds or minutes. Longer episodes can last an hour or more.

Read the passage and answer questions 21 – 25

Garlic has been used throughout the history because it has beneficial properties. It was used as a medicine in Ancient Egypt to cure different kinds of diseases. It was also fed to the slaves building the pyramids. The Egyptians believed that garlic would make the slaves stronger so they could work harder.

The ancient Greeks and Romans discovered even more uses for garlic. In addition to using garlic to cure illnesses, they used the magical power of garlic to protect themselves from evil spirits. Garlic was also fed to soldiers because it was believed that it made them more courageous. Garlic juice was also applied to soldiers' wounds in World War I to resist infection and to prevent gangrene.

Read the passage and answer questions 21-25

We have a very comfortable life, thanks to modern technology. Some examples of this are computers, video-telephones and television. Television has captured our planet. It affects our daily life in the way that no other media can. It gives us the opportunity to learn news, and entertain. It is impossible to live without television now. The so-called home cinemas with large flat screen and special sound equipment have appeared lately. So we can enjoy films with special effects at home. Thanks to the satellite system a great number of channels are available now. Many of them specialize in particular kinds of programmes- news, sport, music, cartoon, movies. The cable television provides even more channels. There is such a wide variety of channels and they broadcast so many different programmes that we can always find something to our taste.

Read the passage and answer the question 21-25

Scientific studies of the moon and the planets may provide information that is useful for us on earth. However, some people believe that it is not reasonable to spend a huge amount of money on space research when there is a greater need for it here. Some critics argue that if the millions of dollars spent on space research were put into health and education programmes around the world, many lives would be improved. It is very difficult to argue against these criticisms.

We need a balance between how much money is spent on space exploration and how much money is spent on solving problems here on earth. More will be achieved in space travel by spending less money, if there is co-operation among nations. This would leave more money to solve problems on earth.

2. Even continued co-operation between nations can't help to solve the problems.
 3. We have got a lot of problems which need solving here on earth.
 4. We must maintain a balance between the amounts of money spent on space exploration and on problems here on earth.
- A) 1,3 B) 2,4 C) 3,4 D) 2,3 E) 1,2

Read the passage and answer questions 21-25

Friendship is a relationship of mutual trust, respect and admiration. It is a relationship in which people may share openly and equally with each other. It involves a shared sense of care and concern, a desire to see each other grow, develop and succeed in everything. Real friends accept each other's faults, share thoughts and feelings, joys and sorrows, their deepest secrets without fear of judgement or negative criticism. A true friend sees the best in you, builds your confidence, helps you in your struggles, and gives you a feeling of comfort and security.

True friendship takes time: to know each other and build shared memories. It also takes hard work to maintain friendship. As years pass, some people stay by your side, but many don't, and you realize that true friendship is the most valuable gift that you can receive in your life.

21. Which question has no answer in the passage?

22. Which word from the passage has the following meaning?

"to make something continue at the same level"

- A) to realize B) to maintain C) to succeed

D) to share E) to involve

- 23. The main idea of the passage is that
- A) you never realize the true value of friendship.
 - B) friendship causes a lot of trouble.
 - C) friends are not equal sides of the relationship.
 - D) negative criticism and judgement are very important in any relationship.
 - E) you have a priceless gift if you have a true friend.
- 24. Which of the following ideas are expressed in the passage?
Real friends
- 1. have some memories to share.
 - 2. want each other to make progress.
 - 3. often have the same faults.
 - 4. are afraid to share their secrets.
 - 5. don't hurt each other while criticizing.
- A) 1,4 B) 2,3 C) 2,4
D) 1,2,5 E) 3,4,5
- 25. According to the passage, which of the following does not characterize a true friend?
A true friend
- A) makes you feel safe and comfortable.
 - B) wishes you every success.
 - C) tries to have the same qualities as you do.
 - D) makes you believe in yourself.
 - E) does not annoy you when you make mistakes.

Read the passage and answer questions 21-25

Silver is one of the most valuable metals in the world. It has a beautiful, white, shiny color, and is widely distributed throughout the world in small amounts. Its leading producer is Mexico. Silver is easy to work with, so people have always made silver coins and loved silver jewellery, dishes and other objects for centuries.

Today silver is also used in chemical and electrical engineering because electricity travels well through it. It is used in airplanes and trains and also in medicine. Silver on the back of glass changes the glass into a mirror. There has been a worldwide shortage of silver since the 1960 s. Today we still enjoy modern silver objects and things made thousands of years ago.

Antarctica is the most southern continent in the world. It's much larger than Europe and Australia. It's an icy area with the South Pole at its centre.Antarctica is the coldest and windiest place in the world,even colder and windier than the North Pole.In summer the sun shines for 24 hours a day,but in winter it's completely dark for about three months. Very few plants grow there,and there's some wildlife,including whales,seals and pinguins. When Captain James Cook sailed around the continent in the 1770s,he found no one living there. Today,a few scientists work in Antarctica,and some of them are studying the ozone layer.The ozone layer is getting thinner and thinner.The biggest "hole" is over Antarctica,where the weather is getting warmer.Scientists think that this cold and lonely place can teach us a lot about the Earth and how to keep it safe.

Read the passage and answer questions 21 – 25

Rainforests are thick forsts in tropical parts of the world that have a lot of rain. The area of rainforests disappears every year. If rainforests are destroyed, they are lost forever. They live on the rich soil made centuries of fallen leaves and trees. When the trees are cut down, rain takes away rich soil. Nothing can grow in the poor soil that is left behind. When the rainforest is destroyed, the area becomes a desert in time. Deserts cover one fourth (1/4) of the Earth. They are increasing rapidly because of the disappearance of forests. A huge amount of oxygen is produced by rainforests. Careless attitude to them will damage the world's ecology. So all the countries should take part in the greening of the world through forest planning.

Read the passage and answer the questions 21-25

Guinness World Records is a reference book published every year, containing a collection of world records.

On May 4th, 1951, Sir Hugh Beaver, the manager of a beer company called Guinness Breveries, went on a hunting trip with some friends in Ireland. He got into an argument about the grouse (qarabağır quşu) whether it was the fastest bird in Europe. That evening he realized that it was impossible to find the answer in any book. Beaver knew that there must be many other similar arguments, so a book with the answers to such types of questions could be popular.

Beaver paid two brothers to research and print the facts in a book called "The Guinness Book of Records." The first 197-page edition became a bestselling book in Britain in 1955. Guinness World Records Museum is in Orlando, Florida.

In 2005, Guinness declared November 9th as "International Guinness World Records Day" to increase encourage breaking of world records.

Read the passage and answer questions 21 – 25

Steve Jobs was an important leader in the technology industry. He was a very interesting person and leader of a very successful technology company called Apple. He founded Apple in 1976 with his friends and they began to sell computers. One of the reasons for Steve Jobs' success was his unique management style.

Job always said he wanted to make Apple a great company with unique products that people would love. He focused all of his creative energy on developing revolutionary technology.

Unfortunately, Jobs' passion sometimes led him to angry behaviour. During the early years of Apple, he often shouted at his employees or even dismissed those who did not share his vision. In spite of this, most employees did not hate him. They understood that Jobs truly believed in the company and its products. He was a very demanding person because he had a real passion for making unusual models like the iPad and the iPhone.

Read the passage and answer questions 21 – 25

Earthquakes are probably one of the most frightening happenings of nature. Today the study of earthquakes has grown greatly. At the present time the scientists don't have enough knowledge to inform people about the time and size of earthquakes. But a large group of scientists at the national Centre for Earthquake Research in California has been able to show the areas where they can happen. Research at the centre about the physical and chemical nature of rocks helps engineers to build structures in the areas that often suffer from earthquakes.

Read the passage and answer questions 21 – 25

Nature is full of beautiful colours. Plants, animals, birds and insects have many beautiful colours. But colour for them is not only for beauty. Birds use their colours to tell other birds to keep away from their nests. They sing and move their wings to show their colours as a warning to other birds.

There is one kind of fish that can change its colour, which is the same as the surroundings sea plants or rocks. Then its enemies can't see it. So colour is very important to animals, birds and insects. Often it can save their lives.

Read the passage and answer questions 21 – 25

Why some very good students often fail exams was recently studied by a professor of psychology Iris Fodor. She did research on the anxiety of some students before taking exams. She stated that many students fail exams because they become extremely nervous and cannot think logically. Although they have studied a lot, they are still afraid of whatever is in the exam. Extremely nervous students forget everything they have studied, some even become become sick before doing a test. Dr. Fodor says how a student feels before taking an exam is very important. She worked with fifty students and taught them how they could reduce their anxiety and do well in their exams. What she told them to do was to breathe deeply and relax slowly before a test, be realistic and do their best.

Read the passage and answer questions 21 – 25

Colour-blindness is a genetically caused condition in which a person cannot distinguish colours. This defect is more common in men than in women. Many colour-blind people do not know that their eyesight is defective. They have learned to use the colour names that everyone else uses, and they do not realize that they do not see the colours that others see.

Most colour-blind people see only two basic colours: white and black. And they confuse other colours, especially red with green. In this case they may be able to distinguish other colours by their brightness. But while crossing the street red and green may have the same brightness in a traffic light. And conditions like that can cause problems and put their lives in danger.

Scientists believe that colour-blindness is a hereditary genetic defect and there is no cure for it.

Read the passage and answer questions 21 – 25
Coffee came from Brazil, Columbia, Indonesia and Ethiopia. These four countries produce most of the coffee in the world today. Brazil produces about half of the world's crop of coffee beans. The coffee plant is a small tree with shiny leaves. A coffee plant grows for about three years before it produces any fruit. After that, it produces fruit for about forty years. The coffee bean is the seed of the fruit. It's difficult to pick coffee beans. Machines can't do it. So people pick most of the coffee beans by hand. They pick between 20 and 40 pounds of coffee beans a day. The old way to grow coffee plants is under large trees. The trees protect the coffee plant from the sun.

21. According to the passage ...

Read the passage and answer questions 21-25

Naming customs are not the same in all societies. In some countries only parents name the baby. In other societies grandparents, family members or special friends choose the name for a baby. Sometimes people name the children after famous people. In China people give their children names with special meanings to bring them good luck and fortune.

A Chinese family might name a baby "Po Lock". "Po" means "good" and "Lock" means "happiness". In France a child must have a traditional name from that culture only. In the United States parents are free to give their child any name. In some cultures people have religious names. Sometimes muslims choose names from the Holy Koran, such as Mohammed, Ali and Hasan.

Read the passage and answer questions 121 - 125.

Most people think of deserts as dry, flat areas with little vegetation and little or no rainfall, but this is hardly true. Many deserts have varied geographical formations. Most deserts have a source of water that exists all the time. Although deserts do not receive a high amount of rainfall, there are many plants that flourish on only small amounts of water and deserts are often full of such plant life. Desert plants have variety of mechanisms for obtaining the water needed for survival. Some plants, such as cactus, are able to store large amount of water in its leaves; after a rainfall these plants take in a large supply of water to last until the next rainfall. Other plants have extraordinary deep root systems that allow them to get water from far below the desert's arid surface.
